We will make all the necessary efforts in order to demand funding from the appropriate institutions, and we will also intensify our own funding programmes.

We will create programmes in order to respond to particular situations: students who work or have family responsibilities, people with functional diversity, with specific needs, or fewer resources.

We will reinforce programmes to create job pools and facilitate labour insertion for our graduates, improving relationships between students and the labour market by means of practical training of varying duration.

We will offer more flexible enrolment procedures and will encourage exchange programmes with other universities. We will make enrolment procedures easier for both students and the staff in charge.